YOUR MAGICAL FUTURE

And what to do with it

Alchemist

Alchemy is a branch of magic and an ancient science concerned with the study of the composition, structure and magical properties of the four basic elements, as well as the transmutation of substances. Very few of those who attempt this art succeed due to the intricacy of the subject. An alchemist must master a variety of other disciplines in order to manouver them freely while conducting alchemy experiments. Some of the most important of these disciplines include potions, transfiguration, charms, arithmancy, chemistry, ancient runes and philosophy - just to name a few.

Alchemy has always been known for its' grandiose schemes and hypothesis, so much so that even muggles have heard of it. Most known amongst these is the transmutation of base metals to gold, or the famous Philosopher's stone. The latter was actually invented by one of the greatest alchemist in the magical history, Nicolas Flamel, who lived to be over 600 years old with the help of the elixir of life concocted using said stone.

As it is often viewed as a profession that risks much for a small shot at greatness, it is not a very popular choice these days.

Alchemy is largely dismissed by modern witches and wizards.

However, if you are a very bright young witch or wizard who exceeds at the majority of your subjects, finds their mind unchallenged, and who continuously wonders what unimaginable concept could become reality - alchemy might just be the choice for you! Successful alchemists become very well known and admired, it's one of the most celebrated and glorious professions, if fruitful.

The grades listed on this page are merely a recommendation of achievements that other alchemists have provided for guidance.

Astronomer

Astronomy is the ancient art of reading, tracking and observing the movements of stars, moons and planets. As well as marking celestial events for record keeping, astronomers can predict a great deal from these events. It has been well established that the magical community is majorly affected by intergalactic movements and planetary positions. Due to this, astronomers are often grouped with seers. However, they base their readings on specific calculations and are greatly offended if their craft is described as anything else than scientific. Astronomical predictions are made through hisdtorical patterns, so it is indeed different from the methods used by seers. While astronomers and seers have been forced to occasionally work together, tension between the two professions is still very prominent. Thus some astronomers choose to stay away from the predictive branch of this proffession.

Regardless, if you can't help but look towards the skies and would like to put your hobby to a practical use, you might consider pursuing a career in astronomy!

There are many schools that offer post-Hogwarts astronomy courses but the Uagadou school course is considered to be the best in the world. If successfull you will experience the most magical stargazing experience of your life, under the sky of the African mountainsides.

To apply you need to present the indicated grades & your most detailed star chart with written interpretations.

Aurologist

The study of auras is a difficult one. An aurologist must not only read the auras of others and be able to map the meaning of the colours and sensations of them, but they also must have a deep understanding of their own spirit in order to do so well.

Aurologists must also be very critical and precise. This is a profession where your senses must rise above your mind, while your mind simultaneously grounds you to be able to rationalise the input and present it to non-aura seeing persons in a coherent manner.

There are two main branches for aurologists: research and client-base. Whilst the two go hand in hand, some aurologists refuse to consult the general wizarding public. Yet some others venture to the muggle world to consult those who do not have the means to do so themselves, and see their job as great honour.

It is unconfirmed, however highly possible, that there is a large sub-department in the Department of Mysteries that specialises in auras, as many aurologists are in employment with the Ministry of Magic. Auras are a subject of a particular interest in France, Japan, and Nepal, and many wizards do decide to continue their practices in said countries. In some foreign wizarding communities aurologists are part of the Higher Magical Court System, where their aura readings are performed on the accused as part of evidence review.

Strictly speaking you do not need any proof of your education to continue your career in aurology, however if you'd like to apply for one of the most prestigious Aura Academys (located in USA), to truly commit your life to the research, practice, and study of auras, these are the minimum grades the Academy asks for.

Auror

Aurors are a highly skilled elite, tasked with protecting the magical community. They are trained to a very high standard. The job, while glorified, is a very dangerous one. As a result, aurors must be ready to risk their lives on a daily basis. To ensure trainees are ready to work field cases, recruits must undergo years of training after graduating from Hogwarts.

You must be capable of passing many exams and tests following your application. However, if you are able to succeed, the job can be very rewarding both morally and financially.

After a couple of years of service, your reputation will open many magical doors to other career paths if you wish to retire early.

To be considered for an Auror position and to be accepted for the Auror Training Programme at the Ministry of Magic you must have the indicated Hogwarts credits.

Broom maker

Broom making is a highly profitable career for those who have what it takes to set the trend. Despite brooms being most commonly used for transportation, the driving factor of the career is definitely Quidditch supplies. The sport has only grown in popularity over the centuries and, as such, the demand for innovation in the craft of broom making has never been higher. Neither has the competition in this field!

Unlike wand making, you do not require a Ministry of Magic permit to practice broom making. However your individual broom models will need to pass safety tests run by the Broom Regulatory Control department before they are approved for retail.

There is a handful of well known broom manufacturers, who are always interested in fresh and talented additions to their creative concept teams. It's a great opportunity to learn the craft before trying to strike out on your own. These companies also provide private courses, however there are independently run ones available if you are willing to put in the galleons.

To further your education and/or apply for a career with a reputable broom trader, general requirements are as follow.

Care of magical children

 Have you always been great with children and have shown an innate care for those who need protection around the chaos that is magic? You might be a perfect fit to work the field of care of magical children!

Focusing mainly on pre-Hogwarts age, this discipline includes roles in foster care, magical infant advisory for new families, social care investigations, work with kids that need extra help controlling their magic and even specialisations in performance charms for children entertainment. Work with magical kids can be extremely rewarding as you help and nurture them into young capable witches and wizards, ensuring their safety and happiness along the way. However, the roles are not for the faint hearted, magical children can be ridiculously mischievous, and not even always on purpose! You must have great control over your temper, high level of general education in most magic fields and further training in developmental science, techniques and spells.

History shows that those with playful, positive personalities and strong authoritativeness thrive in this field.

Three Ministry of Magic conducted exams will be held before you are permitted to practice, however once passed these positions allow for flexible hours, high demand and pay.

To qualify for training you must have the grades provided.

Culinary sorcerer

For those fascinated by flavour, experimenting and, well, savouring, there's no better choice for a career than that of a culinary sorcerer.

Culinary sorcerers make their living by creating amazing magical dishes and are either employed by hospitality establishments or combine their culinary skills with management skills to open and run their own shop or restaurant.

If you have a fascination with sweet treats, wizarding world is ready for you! Not a day passes without a cauldron cake or a sherbet lemon. Sweets shops are extremely popular, especially in towns nearby schools, such as Hogsmeade.

Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry is always in demand of a talented chef to curate exciting menus not only for every day events but for Jule Balls and End of Year feasts. The position also requires good leadership skills as you are in charge of a team of well paid house elves.

Establishments such as Bestbeet's Fine Magical Dining, Three Broomsticks and Leaky Cauldron often have vacancies.

From pumpkin pasties, treacle tart and gourmet chocolate frogs to international cuisine such as bouillabaisse, career in culinary arts will never be boring.

You will be expected to graduate from the Magical Cooking and Baking Academy (MCBA), there are 4 mastery levels, only first is mandatory for further practice. It is a competitive career with long work hours, however if successful you will be swimming in catering requests and bookings.

Proof of education to a certain level, a short practical test and a novel dish idea pitch will be required in order to be accepted into the MCBA. Grades needed are listed here.

Curse breaker

Chis is a highly adventurous occupation, all to do with removing curses, hexes and jinxes from illegally bewitched objects or places. One of the major employers for curse breakers are banks. Banks often confiscate or inherit many objects that have been begrudgingly cursed by previous owner and thus they require curse breaker abilities daily! But an even more popular option is freelancing! Curse breakers have acquired a reputation to be 'hard to tame' in an office based environment and have become known for being quite difficult to work with if they feel trapped and controlled. If you wish to be in full control of your schedule you might give this profession a serious thought! Clientele consist of companies and individuals alike. It is considered common practice to hire a curse breaker when a wizard pre-owned property is bought to make sure the place is suitable for occupation by the new owner. Curse breakers also profit from seeking and acquiring objects, de-jinxing them and selling these to antique stores. This is, however, a highly competitive career path. If you are self-assertive and head strong you are likely to exceed at it! As a bonus, galleons will be plentiful! There is no necessity for further education after Hogwarts but to be a reputable curse breaker you would need to hold a Ministry of Magic issued Breaker Permit. The permit will also add your name to the Breaker contact list, which will be help you find a client base. There is a practical part to acquiring the permit, but you must also show evidence of the grades shown here.

Graphic designer

The magical community is known for their extremely short attention span (rumoured to be a generational effect on modern witches and wizards originating from the spontaneous street duels that were very prevalent in Vth century community) one of the most sought out professionals are those talented in graphic design. Almost every business of magical curiosities will need to hire a team of highly talented graphic designers for marketing of their magical goods. Main focus is on creating a layout that draws attention of the passerby's to the display window, carrying that attention towards the product and implementing graphic elements to show a story of what the product does, how it can be of benefit and why exactly do these passerby's need it in their lives right away.

If you have always been interested in colour interactions, movement & loop charms, and wizarding consumerism psychology this might be a perfect career for you!

Graphic designer for magical goods is a relatively travel free choice, perfect for those who prefer to stay close to home.

Further qualifications can be achieved after a satisfying portfolio has been established, applications to Høpler Academy of Graphic Arts are open annually with limited admission spaces but no cap on lifetime maximum of submitting thier candidacy.

If you commit to the career as a wizarding graphic designer you are strictly forbidden by the ministry of Magic to freelance in the muggle world due to the previous cases of completely overshadowing muggle graphic designers and causing muggle unemployment and a small hysteria and obsession over the GV adds.

Grade requirements listed are representative of the minimum requirement of most art academies.

Healer

A wizard healer is a person who dedicates his life to improve and safeguard those of others. This is not a profession for the faint hearted. Over the years wizards seem to have taken it upon themselves to get into a ridiculous amount of trouble with the oddest of consequences which you will struggle to find solutions for in your course books. But a healer training course will prepare you enough to be able to deal with the unexpected.

It will, however, take years.

As a healer you will spend a minimum of 5 years learning the art of healing magic and a further 3 as a trainee healer before you will be allowed autonomy.

Healing in most cases is performed through skilled improvisation, so you must know your remedies, anti-jinxes and potions inside and out! The occupation of a healer is truly a testing one. But if you are certain you can devote many hours to practice as well as research, this will be a job that will keep your mind sharp, soul happy, skills up to date, and your Gringotts Bank vault comfortably full.

One of the main employers of healers are the major hospitals of the country, such as St. Mungo's Hospital for Magical Maladies and Injuries in great Britain, with branches in majority of wizarding villages and cities.

If you think you have the brain & heart for the profession, do not be daunted by the years of study as we can promise you there will not be a dull moment in your life as a healer.

Herbologist

losely working with potioners, healers, and apothecaries, herbologists care and tend to magical plants. Considered quite a solitary profession, herbology is a perfect career for those who like peace and a sense of fulfilment. It's a spiritually rewarding profession, although not the most reliable source of income, as one angry batch of teenage Mandragoras can, if left alone, destroy the rest of the crops for the year. Good quality herbal ingredients heavily rely on the care and attention the herbologist show their plants and thus a good herbologist will always find work.

If you are one with nature, have a caring personality, love experimenting, have buckets of patience, and sometimes simply prefer plants over humans - this path is for you!

You do not need a license to start your own greenhouse, however if you intend on selling magical ingredients and/or act as a herbal consultant you will need to qualify for a Herbalist Certificate issued by the Magical Society of Herbology (MSH), further approved by Ministry of Magic. The Certificate is issued post successful examination. Herbologist Certificate exams are held every 2 years. If you fail the exam, you are offered a 2 year course within the MSH, in exchange for a further 4 years of consultancy on all herbology matters (might include travel).

To apply for the certificate you must prove you have the grades shown here.

Hogwarts professor

Do you find the idea of leaving Hogwarts behind unacceptable? Would you like to perfect a chosen magical discipline to the highest extent and bestow your wisdom upon the younger generations of witches and wizards? Our doors are always open, provided that you have what it takes to control a classroom filled with hormonal teenage students! Being a teacher at Hogwarts is a very prestigious position, which comes with many added perks for your research and travel prospects. As a teacher you will have a unique ability to influence the next wizarding generation and as such we have quite high moral and academic standards you'll have to meet. Firstly, you must graduate Hogwarts with high grades (please find more information below). Secondly, some years of experience of individual research or apprenticeship is preferable. Thirdly you must send us an owl with an essay explaining why you think you're suitable for the role. If you are selected at this stage, a final interview with a current Hogwarts Headmaster will follow.

Whilst there's not always a full-time teaching position available we do have a backlist that we call upon if the current teacher falls foul of a nasty student prank or some magical epidemic Madam Pomfrey has not found the cure for yet. Additionally, until a position is available we offer occasional teaching days for experience and brilliant exchange programmes with fellow international wizarding schools such as Beauxbatons, Ilvermony, Uagadou, and more.

Journalist or Writer

Are you often found surrounded by dozens of parchment rolls, spilled ink and various quills? Writing stories down and making them come to life is something you live for? You might consider writing as your career! Whether your ambition is to see your book featured at the front display of Flourish & Blotts, to be stocked at Hogwarts Library, or even to become a bestseller author in muggle publishing, you can do it all on your own! All you need is your clever mind, sharp tongue, ink & parchment. This is a very autonomous career path, however there are many creative writing groups and magical writing tools & trinkets conventions that will never let you feel lonely.

You do not necessarily need to hold any specific qualifications from Hogwarts to start your independent writing career, however if you are looking into the Enchanting Creative Writing Course or you want to work as a reporter with a newspaper agency, like Daily Prophet, the below requirements can offer general guidance.

Librarian

Lundreds of years ago, during the Dark War, many of the most important magical tomes have been scattered all over the world in an attempt to weaken the future generations of witches and wizards. Although the majority of the tomes have now been discovered and transcribed, some of the rarest tomes are still out there. Thus alongside assisting witches and wizards with their material and taking care of the library, one of the main tasks of a librarian is to seek and hunt the Lost Tomes of Knowledge.

Often confused with a muggle career of the same name, librarian's job is extremely dangerous. Books are the single most important means of our education and the task of guarding, distributing and hunting of magical tomes is not to be taken lightly. This is a position for the adventurous at heart!

Are you prepared to battle dark forces, enchantments, and curses? If so, in return we offer unlimited access to any and all written material available to mankind.

A 3 year hunting sabbatical is available if you wish to focus on the search of Lost Tomes. Unlimited access to librarian-only search notes dating back to the end of Dark War will be made available to you after 2 years of service.

All librarians are hired by Ministry of Magic and work under the supervision of Department of Mysteries. You must be extremely fluent in Ancient Runes. Further details are unknown.

No further studies are mandatory, however written and physical tests will be conducted.

Magician of Visual Arts

Ever wonder how the pictures in the Daily Prophet or the portraits on the walls of St. Mungus Hospital appear almost alive? It is not a case of a simple Quickfeet spell or an Eternity Loop jinx! Every photographer, diagram sketcher and painter goes through thorough and secret teaching of the ancient art of wizardry visuals.

Operating similarly to a secret society, the Aloudia Institute of Visual Arts is one of the most elite and secretive places that teach the art of bringing pictures, drawings and paintings to life. The admission to the Institute is almost entirely art profile based, however some particular grades do help (indicated on this page). The competition for each spot is steep, only a couple of professionals graduate every year, however if you believe you have an eye for the craft you might do very well for yourself. Due to the low number of qualified artists, those that do succeed and achieve the title of a Visual Art Magician are highly sought out and almost always have months of booked appointments in advance. Magicians of Visual Arts are almost always self-employed and ultimately masters of their own schedule. However keep in mind that the nature of the profession will mean a lot of travel.

If you are interested, it is advised to start building your portfolio with still pictures or drawings as early as possible so that once your invitation for an interview arrives (by crow mail!) you are prepared!

Magizoologist

A magizoologist is a person who dedicates their life to studying, investigating and protecting magical creatures. It's a popular career with many possible subpaths. The majority of wizards decide to focus on a specific favourite species after a couple of decades of studying a broader spectrum of fantastic beasts, however general magizoologists are also highly sought after by many institutions.

This is an occupation for those with an inborn affinity to animals, those who are not afraid of an occasional injury, and those who enjoy travelling. As a magizoologist, you will find yourself travelling all over the world in search of creatures and participating in magizoology expeditions with fellow researchers. As such, this might not be a particularly suitable career for those who wish to settle down or have recently started a family.

You do not need to present Hogwarts certification at most job interviews for jobs relating to magical creature care or supervision, as most tests are very much hands-on. It is, however, advantageous if you have the below listed grades to show.

Key traits
Care - Gentleness - Perception

Metal charmer

Metal charming is the ancient art in enchanting metalwork with certain magical properties. It requires a great deal of attention to detail, dedication, precision and patience. It is not a career for those who like to see results quickly.

Metal charming is a very exclusive and elite profession, not only due to the limited number of specialist but also the challenges an ordinary wizard would have to go through to get their hands on a metal charmers' contact.

There is an extensive history of competitors going through great lengths to acquire another metal charmers' research.

Throughout the history, there has been quite a few mysterious disappearances, unexplained amnesias, identity thefts and more.

Because of this, most wizards and witches decide to work on their craft in secret, remaining anonymous.

A lot of metal charmers' work is used in secret in places such as Gringotts Bank, the Ministry of Magic, and Azkaban, where the properties of their artefacts are not revealed to the public for security reasons. However, a few famous known examples of metal charmers' inventions are Golden Snitches, Sneakoscopes, and Time Turners.

This is a profession that will provide a good metal charmer with rare but giant spurs of income. As far as it's known, metal charmers never have complained of lack of galleons in their vaults.

In addition to passing with the grades listed below you will also be required to present 3 idea pitches with detailed blueprints and calculations at the time of your registration exam at the Ministry of Magic. A Master Metal Charmer will be present, however your memory of their identity will be altered after your performance is completed. Please note that working as a metal charmer without the Ministry of Magic's permit is considered illegal.

Mind medic

A wizard needs to keep a well-organised mind, however sometimes such hectic lifestyle and unpredictable events prove it a difficult task. A mind medic is a person charged with helping those who no longer feel balanced. A Mind Medic trains for years in psychology theory, therapy and practice, alongside some of the most intricate, challenging spells and counter-spells that can help a person whose mind troubles them. Some are actually caused by a back-fired experimental jinx or a generational curse, while others occur entirely naturally. The Mind Medic is a professional trained in the art of recognising the type of mind block and providing a variety of solutions and healing plans. This is considered a very dangerous and important profession, and carries a lot of responsibility. You are meddling with the mind, after all! A mind wizard or witch puts their own mind at risk as a many curses are designed to attack the wizard attempting to break it. As a consequence, St Mungo's Hospital, ward 49, is very heavily inhabited by ex mind medics. As such, professionals are highly sought out, well paid, and also held to a very high academic standard.

Ministry worker

Ministries of Magic are the primary governing bodies in many countries. Within our Ministry there is an abundance of different departments with a variety of focuses. If you wish to make a difference in the magical world and would like to be a part of something big, chances are there's a place waiting for you at the ministry. Below is a list of the major departments and offices who work under them.

Department of Magical Law and Enforcement, which houses the Auror Office, Office for the Detection and Confiscation of Counterfeit Spells and Protective Objects, Misuse of Muggle Artefacts Office, Improper Use of Magic Office, Wizengamot, Wizengamot Administration Services

Department of Magical Accidents and Catastrophes, which houses the Accidental Magic Reversal Squad, Obliviator Headquarters, Muggle-Worthy Excuse Committee, Invisibility Task Force, Muggle Liaison Office

Department for the Regulation and Control of Magical Creatures, under which you can find the Beast Division, Being Division, Spirit Division, Goblin Liaison Office, Centaur Liaison Office, Pest Advisory Board, Office of Disinformation

Department of International Magical Cooperation, which includes International Magical Trading Standards Body, International Magical Office of Law, International Confederation of Wizards

Department of Magical Transportation, which houses Floo network Authority, Broom Regulatory Control, Portkey Office, Apparition Test Centre

Department of Magical Games and Sports: British and Irish Quidditch League Headquarters, Official Gobstones Club, Ludicrous Patents Office

Department of Mysteries: unspecified sub-departments.

Most Ministry positions do not require further specialised education as they do provide extensive in-house training. Different departments have specific requirements for employees' past education (please find the list at section 1.b), however the below apply to all.

Potioneer

Does a life behind a cauldron sound like a dream? Have you found yourself exceeding at mixing various ingredients and predicting the outcome even when not following any particular set of instructions? You might find that potionering is the fun and challenging career you have been looking for.

As a potioneer you will concoct all sorts of brews and potions that are already licensed and will also have opportunities to receive funding for your own research and leave your mark in the craft with new inventions!

As well as being hired by variety of institutions, such as Ministry of Magic (there are always spots for the extremely talented), chemists, research centres, St Mungo's Hospital, etc: you can also live a very comfortable life as an independent potioneer. This is considered a very profitable career if you have the talent, however be warned, making a name for yourself might be hard at first.

But don't fret, if you wish to stay sharp and keep up with the newest mixology techniques, there are a couple post-Hogwarts courses you can sign up for. In addition, you can keep up with the trends by attending annual events such as Remedies, Poisons and Secret Ingredients convention. Once your reputation is known, you might be lucky to receive an invitation to join the Most Extraordinary Society of Potioneers, which will grant you access to ancient potion knowledge. Wizards who do not hold a Potioneers' license cannot sell and profit from their brews and potions, and any or all damages caused by such trade are not covered by the Potioneers Protego Insurance (PPI). This is one of the few licenses that does require renewing every 10 years as the craft is ever-changing.

Quidditch referee

Want to follow your dream and make a living watching your favourite sport, Quidditch? Want to live and breathe Quidditch, but you're not a particular good player yourself? Worry not! If you are a stickler to rules, know the game theory, history and can spot an error even in the most chaotic of situations you might qualify to be a Quidditch referee!

As the sport is such a galeon bringer to the local economy and has so many witches and wizards invested, the job comes with certain risks of attacks from angry fans, as such high grades in defensive spells are encouraged. Amongst other requirements, perfect or corrected vision is a must.

You are eligible to apply for a referee programme right after you finish school. Programmes are offered in most capitals. The courses usually consist of game history, theory, extensive rule reviews, simulation practice games and referee flying techniques. All training programmes are certified by the Ministry of Magic Department of Magical Games and Sports.

Please note that previous professional players or coaches are not allowed to qualify as a referee due to possible bias.

Please also note that if you are afraid of heights this is a bad bad idea.

A foot long paper on the key events of the next planetary year based on tea leaf readings, star charts and crystal ball gazings.

Either those who can see beyond the ordinary, becoming a seer can be the only path forward.

But, of course, you already know this.

You must have an open mind, heart, and inner eye. This is not a craft that can be tested by silly exams, however many Honourable Seers do prefer if a person they decide to teach the craft already has the following credits.

If you have found yourself connected to the realms of the past, present and future, no text book, grade or exam will change that.

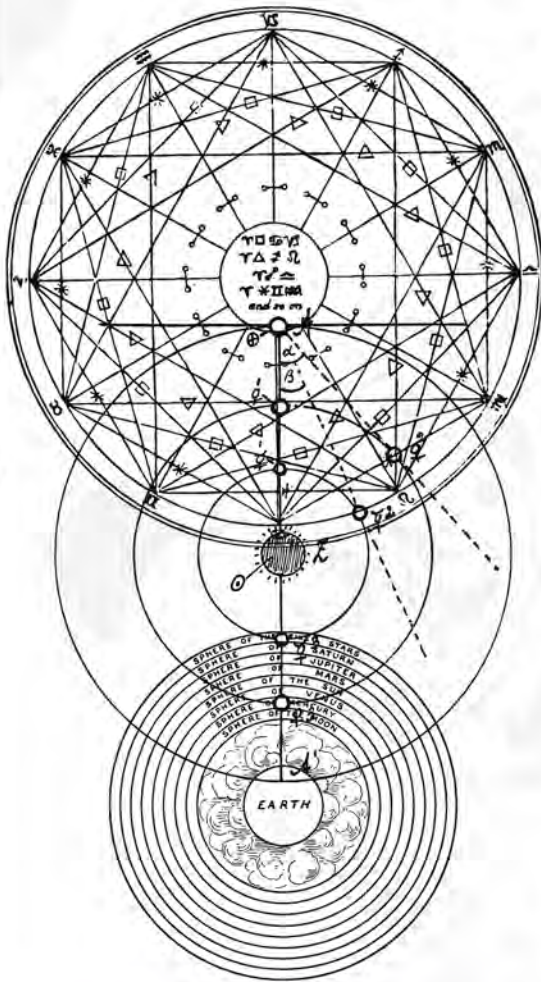

Please contact the Oracle Sanctuary (we are located underneath the Loch Ness).

If you are a seer who wishes to work with the prophecies you might be able to apply for a job at the Ministry of Magic. They are always looking for talented future tellers and can provide full time employment within the Department of Mysteries. It is rumoured that the seers gain access to the Hall of Prophecy, which is considered a great honour amongst fellow seers.

Spell maker

To prevent our magic going dormant we have spell makers! Witches and wizards who have dedicated their work to extensive research, data collection and careful and meticulous testing of possible new charms, spells, jinxes and anti-jinxes. Working strictly within a non-government organisation called WDO (the World Magic Organisation) spell makers have high budgets and brilliant facilities to safely research and test new spells, occasionally approving these and releasing them to the public, integrating them into the everyday magical use. Spell makers study ancient and modern cultures, astronomical and cultural influences on spells, focusing on spells that have disappeared or mutated throughout time. Once a mutation (be it a pronunciation of a spell or accompanying gesture) is spotted, they record the changes that occurred in the spell. This is done for various spells and the data is combined into the Spell Tree (similar to a family tree). Once the connections are drawn between the changes and mutations, similar mutations are applied to the spells we know and use today (or those that have disappeared or became ineffective) in an attempt to improve or invent an entirely new spell altogether.

It's a perfect field for those who love to mix theory with practice and those that don't mind working on a same project for a long period of time within a relatively small team of people. If you have always had an interest in magic evolution and would love the means to conduct safe experiments in search of new spells make sure to focus on the listed grades. The position requires quite a lot of academic credits and will also include 2 years of training and a 3 year programme of working under a senior spell maker but you can expect hands on experience within 2 years of joining the WDO Spell making Department.

Trader of Magical Tomes

Have books always been your one true love? Ignore the muggles that tell you it's a mere hobby! As trader of magical tomes you can make a living by collecting and selling magical tomes, fantastical reads and enchanted course-books! Graders of magical tomes are employed by magical bookshops everywhere!

Typical position includes three days working at the bookstore helping the customers find their next magical read, making sure shelving is correct, cataloguing new arrivals and hosting author events. The other two days consist of reading the new releases before they are marked fitting for the store, de-jinxing old tome collections, looking after the no-visitors sections of the bookstore, and doing research of your own choice to keep your mind sharp and engaged. These two days are spent on the premise but in a secluded trader-only floor that is set up for maximum comfort according to research on optimal reading environment. Tea, pillows and pets are provided.

You must be willing to constantly improve and learn. This is a perfect career path for those who love learning and reading but also those who eventually want to open their own bookshop.

No previous training is required however a commitment to a 2 year apprenticeship under the supervising trader is required. A certificate of Grader of Magical Tomes is acquired after a successful apprenticeship. This certificate is recognised within the Madame Vallume Worldwide Bookster Organisation and will help you immensely if you plan on continuing your career within publishing.

Reading breaks guaranteed!

Wandmaker

Wandmaking is one of the first wizarding crafts which has been acknowledge as an honourable profession amongst wizards. If you show a brilliant attention to detail and have a certain fondness towards research that extends to more hands-on experience, you might want to consider wandmaking as a profession.

You will need to keep up with the trends and make sure to provide an excellent service, and thus the study of wandmaking is not an easy one. Understandably so, as a wand is the most important wizards' companion, which will stay with them for their whole life!

Be warned, many have failed to make a name for themselves especially since the craft is so heavily monopolised by a few famous lines such as Ollivanders and Gregorovitch. It will be challenging to build your reputation to meet theirs. But if you are passionate and do like a challenge, this might be for you!

Due to nuanced nature of the craft you will need a brilliant balance between a very critical mind and creativity.

To qualify for wandmaking course and sit the exam for wandmaking permit, the minimum Hogwarts achievements are as follows.

Key traits
Attention to detail - Reliability -
Quality over Quantity attitude
